

Suneeta Motala of Stewards Investment Capital joins Forbes Communications Council

Suneeta Motala, Chief Marketing Officer at Stewards Investment Capital, has been inducted into the Forbes Communications Council, an exclusive community for top communications, marketing, and PR executives. Her acceptance is a nod to her extensive experience and impact on business growth, alongside her professional accomplishments.

As part of the Council, Motala will engage with fellow leaders, contribute original articles, and participate in Expert Panels on Forbes.com. "I am truly humbled by my appointment to the Forbes Communications Council... This recognition highlights Stewards Investment Capital's dedication to excellence... Through this platform, I aim to create a meaningful impact," Motala expressed.

Glen Steward, the company's Founder, praised her achievement, especially noting its timing with International Women's Day. Bilal Adam, CEO, also celebrated her induction as a milestone for both Motala and Mauritius, emphasizing its significance in promoting global representation and honoring women in leadership.

